ABSTRACT

Information is displayed at a terminal. Search criteria is received. A database is searched for the search criteria to determine search results. The search results are displayed in random order.